The objective is easy: cash out before the multiplier "crashes."

If a gamer cashes out at 2.50 x, they double their initial stake (minus a little house edge). Nevertheless, if the multiplier crashes before they cash out, they lose their entire bet for that round. The twist? The crash point is entirely random, often happening quickly at 1.00 x, and other times reaching huge heights like 500x or <https://bitz.io/games/big-bass-crash-mobile> higher.

2. The Launch: Once the betting window closes, the multiplier begins to tick up from 1.00 x.
3. The Cash-Out: Players watch the multiplier increase in real-time, clicking the "Cash Out" button whenever they feel satisfied with the present payout.
4. The Crash: At a totally random split second, the game halts, and the multiplier crashes. Anyone who hasn't squandered by this point loses their wager.

In traditional online gambling establishments, players should blindly rely on that the house is running a fair random number generator (RNG). Provably fair algorithms, however, utilize cryptographic hashing to enable gamers to independently confirm the fairness of each and every single round.

- Before the round starts: The gambling establishment generates a secret crash point, hashes it, and offers the hash to the gamer.
- After the round ends: The unhashed secret is exposed.
