Hiring a cleaning service is easy. Hiring the right one takes a little more thought. Whether you are looking for a weekly home visit in Cave Spring or nightly janitorial work for an office in downtown Roanoke, asking a few smart questions up front can save you a lot of frustration later. Here is what to ask, and how The Happy Housekeepers answers.

Five Questions Worth Asking Before You Book

First, are you licensed, bonded and insured? This protects you if something is damaged or goes missing. The Happy Housekeepers is licensed, bonded and insured, and it bonds and insures its employees through the company. Second, how long have you been in business? Longevity says a lot about reliability. This company has served the Roanoke Valley since July 1979, which is more than four decades of continuous local service.

Third, what exactly is included in a standard visit? A good company will tell you clearly. The Happy Housekeepers covers dusting and polishing furniture, vacuuming carpets, mopping hard floors, complete kitchen and bathroom cleanups, dusting window sills, baseboards, blinds and ceiling fans, emptying trash and removing cobwebs. Specialized tasks such as spring and fall cleanings, inside-oven and refrigerator cleaning, wall and woodwork washing, light fixture cleaning and basement cleaning are available on top.

Fourth, how do you price your work, and is the estimate free? You should never feel pressured. This company provides free estimates with no obligation, and customer reviews on its website mention good value and clear pricing. Fifth, what happens if I am not happy? Look for a company that follows up. The Happy Housekeepers calls after every first cleaning to check on your satisfaction, a tradition rooted in founder Mary Jane Wszolek's promise of satisfaction guaranteed.

It is also worth checking independent sources. The company has been BBB accredited since 1993 with an A+ rating, and its BBB profile lists the same Starkey Road address and phone number you see on its website. Consistent details across sources are a good sign you are dealing with a genuine, established business rather than a short-lived operation.

One more tip: ask about flexibility. Life changes, and your cleaning plan should be able to change with it. The Happy Housekeepers offers one-time, weekly, bi-weekly and monthly plans, plus semi-weekly and daily options for homes that need them, and the office can adjust your schedule around vacations, holidays or a new baby. A company that bends to fit your life is far easier to stick with over the long term.

Once you have your answers, the choice usually becomes clear. To ask these questions yourself, call (540) 774-4299 and speak to The Happy Housekeepers at 5145 Starkey Rd, Roanoke, VA 24018.
