Winter in the Roanoke Valley is rarely brutal, but it is messy. A few snowfalls, plenty of cold rain and roads treated with salt and brine all add up to a season of wet boots, gritty floors and salty residue tracked through entryways. For homes and businesses alike, a dependable cleaning service makes those months much easier to manage.

Keeping Floors Clean When the Weather Turns

Hard floors suffer most. Salt residue leaves a dull white film on tile, vinyl and hardwood, and grit acts like sandpaper underfoot. Regular mopping of hard-surface floors and vacuuming of carpets are core parts of The Happy Housekeepers standard residential checklist, and during winter those tasks matter more than ever. If you have hardwood with a manufacturer-recommended cleaner, the crew will use it at your request.

The office can make that change easily, and the company offers one-time, weekly, bi-weekly and monthly plans.
